Preservation Seminar

RESTORATION OF THE CASINO
AT CASTLE HILL
IPSWICH, MASSACHUSETTS
Friday, November 14, 2014
9:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

This workshop will focus on the Casino renovation.

The Trustees of Reservations (TTR) continued the magnificent restoration of the grounds at National Historic Landmark, Castle Hill in Ipswich. This year, 99 years after its creation, the crumbling Casino—the epitome of a Country Place Era masterpiece of landscaping and design—was restored. Designed in the Italian Renaissance style by landscape architect Arthur Shurtleff, in collaboration with Boston architectural firm Shurtleff, Barlow, and Coolidge, the Casino (1914-15) presides over the existing Great House designed by David Adler (1924-28). For this project, TTR used original documentation and materials wherever possible.

New England Landscape Design and History Association (NLDHA) and TTR are pleased to collaborate on this Preservation Seminar that focuses on the Casino restoration. Join us for an in-depth program in the Great House with TTR staff and other professionals who will explain the issues, process and decision-making involved. Bob Murray, TTR Northeast Region's Operations Manager, will lead a tour of the restored Casino. After lunch, a distinguished panel will answer questions and discuss issues with a particular emphasis on landscape, preservation and adaptive reuse of this incredible space. You will have ample opportunity to participate in the discussions, ask questions, and share ideas with the staff and other professionals.

Dwelling in Landscape

Professor Daniel Huettl explores the changing practices in building buildings within the broader landscape, and in shaping landscapes surrounding residences.

He traces theories of planned and aspirational ideas about the appropriate relationship between residences and their domestic landscapes such as:

- Charles Eliot's residential landscapes
- Helga Hill's, a modern post-World War II residential subdivision in Alexandria, Virginia
- Chicago's setback apartment buildings of the early 20th century

Professor Huettl is Director of the Boston University Preservation Studies Program and Professor of History of Art and Architecture, and American and New England Studies.

In re: Opposition to House Bill 4856

Dear Committee Member:

This refers to House Bill 4856, scheduled for a hearing before your committee this Friday, July 30, 2010. For the reasons stated below, The New England Landscape Design & History Association (NELDHA) opposes the passage of this proposed legislation.

NELDHA is a non-profit, tax-exempt membership organization. NELDHA’s mission is to further the education of landscape designers, landscape historians, preservationists, and conservationists; to promote their professions; and to communicate to the public NELDHA’s commitment to landscape design, landscape history, conservation, preservation and stewardship of the land. Our members include designers, historians, preservationists, educators, government officials, and others in landscape related businesses.

This proposed legislation will have a serious and negative impact on the professions of our members and thousands of others in landscape related businesses. This amendment purportedly relates to the registration of landscape architects under M.G.L. Ch. 112 and the use of the title “landscape architect.” Rather, the amendment goes much further than a mere registration statute. It purports to restrict and curtail legitimate landscape business activities that do not require the training or supervision of a landscape architect. To enact this bill would have deleterious consequences for thousands of professionals and impose needless expense on consumers.

This proposed amendment is totally unnecessary. Current rules, regulations, licensing requirements, and bid specifications address any public safety and health concerns relating the performance of non-landscape architect landscape professionals. Regulation of other professions within the “registration” laws pertaining to landscape architects does not belong in this amendment. This amendment benefits solely landscape architects and operates as a restraint of trade. Furthermore, it establishes an unneeded new bureaucracy that will increase expense to consumers and the Commonwealth.
